I saw a news report on ktuu Channel 2 news. It sounded like a meeting in which people expressed their concerns, and the State shared information about process, but I didn't get the sense that there were any follow up steps or consequences.

I haven't heard any details about EPA traveling to Iliamna or the proposed mine site this year.

Hi Patty,
Last night was a forum on Pebble held by Nunamta Aulukesta. Tom Crawford and two other state folks discussed permitting. David Chambers, Carol Ann Woody and Jack Smith discussed the mining industries record in relation to Pebble. The facilitator was a native man from Bristol Bay, though I don't recall his name (he said his name in Yupik). I talked briefly with him at the end. He said that EPA folks from Washington DC and Seattle were planning to come up in August. I recall some discussion about this and set aside travel funds for such a trip. Is there still such a plan? Do you have any updates?
